

Normal poncho. It's bigger than some and heavier than most. It's for crossing town in a downpour. Weight keeps it down, stops flapping. You WANT a heavy 'cho, yep. Here's Harry, who isn't.

Here's our touchy-feely model. The hand-slats were a surprise. Those Grundeners are thinking! Note also the hood. We'll nix the hood, but may go with the feeler-slats, but rotated 90 deg. These are proto-ponchos. We're shooting for late Fall. May have a Japanese model too---not sure.
